Primary and secondary colleagues welcome

FREE R&D event

An opportunity to learn about a range of effective teacher research models that have been used to develop literacy, AfL and intervention approaches to improve outcomes for underachieving pupils.

The programme include aspects of leading whole school research and development as well as practical teaching strategies to inform classroom practice. The sessions are informed by teachers' involvement in national, local and individual research projects, including collaboration with primary cluster schools and the Faculty of Education.

Learning walks are also built into the afternoon, plus time to share ideas and approaches.

Programme includes

- R&D mini TeachMeet
- Learning walks
- Action research frameworks
- Research Lesson Study seminar
- A choice of Research in Action workshops (see details below)
- Light lunch and refreshments
- Networking opportunities

Research in action workshops topics:

- Developing effective cross-curricular literacy approaches in humanities subjects
- What does excellent feedback look like in practical lessons?
- Using an enquiry model to develop targeted intervention and teaching approaches
- Creating meaningful opportunities for pupils to act on feedback
